A flexible and motivated researcher seeking a position in (observational) physical oceanography, which will utilise the communication and numeracy skills developed during his studies as well as working experience (abroad) in companies and research institutes. During my degree I successfully combined my studies with internships and part time jobs, journeys and other commitments showing myself to be self-motivated, organised and being able to work with others. I have a clear, open mind with a practical approach to problem solving driven by societal and environmental innovation for sustainability. In conclusion, I would describe myself as an enthusiastic, hardworking, eager to learn and reliable person who has a passion for waves and seas.
